1. Regulation 25(1)(vii) of the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Research Analysts) Regulations, 2014 (RA Regulations), inter-alia, mandates a Research Analyst/ Research Entity (RA/ RE) to maintain records of communication, including call recordings.

3. Based on the representations received from the market participants and as a part of SEBI's ongoing efforts to enhance the ease of doing business, amendment to Regulation 25(1)(vii) of the RA Regulations have been notified, thereby relaxing the requirement upon RAs/ REs to maintain call recordings of communications with clients which are institutional investors.

b. Regulation 25 (1) of RA Regulations also provides that RA or research entity shall maintain the records with respect to its interaction with clients. In this regard, it is clarified that:

(i) RA shall maintain records of interactions, with all clients including prospective clients (prior to onboarding), where any conversation related to its services has taken place, inter-alia, in the form of:

4.2. In Paragraph 33 of Annexure I (Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) related to regulatory provisions for Research Analysts) of Chapter VII of the Master Circular for RAs, the response to point iii. shall be replaced with the following:

“iii. The requirement of maintenance of records of interactions with clients such as call recordings, emails, etc. is applicable for fee-paying as well as non-fee paying clients whereas non-fee paying clients are the clients receiving research services as a value added service along with other services availed from the research entity or any other entity at family/ group level on payable basis. For the purpose of abundant clarity, it is to be stated that call recording is not required if the interaction with client is made through means such as email, etc. for which digital footprint is available.

The purpose of the records of the client interaction is to document the interaction to cater to potential client grievances related to research services provided by the RA/ research entity.
